"Motorists who enjoy browsing through a book of the nostalgic sort are likely to be charmed by Cars of the Connoisseur—that is, unless they have in their background some well-loved car of a mark which Mr. Buckley has ignored. A few, for example, may be offended to find the early Invicta listed as a sports car for the connoisseur, but the 30/98 Vauxhall omitted. If one thinks in terms of refinement, the author is right; but if in terms of excitement, he may be adjudged wrong."

The contributors to this "evaluation of the activities and role of the House Committee on Un-American Activities are, for the most part, associated with the conservative publication National Review. . . . This book consists of a compilation of articles by William Buckley, James Burnham, Ralph de Toledano, Irving Ferman, and others who frankly defend the work of the Committee on the premise that the real threat to America lies in Communist subversion—a threat that is not only 'external' but 'internal' as well. . . . They also attempt to add some light on the Committee and its activities by discussing the Hiss Case, the investigating power of Congress, the Committee's procedures and other apposite matters." Willard Edwards
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 25 '62 370w

"The book does not carry out the promise of its title as carefully as it might have done, perhaps because it was a joint assignment. The one chapter written by Mr. Buckley himself is the most disappointing. It gives the impression of having been assembled from two or three articles dealing with particular criticisms of the committee. . . . But Mr. Buckley does not seem to have grasped what the critics were trying to get at. Nevertheless the dominant impression of the book is one of trying . . . to meet not unreasonable criticism not unreasonably. . . . This is not an angry book. It makes its defense of the committee more plausible than its committed defenders have permitted hitherto." S. R. Davis

"Buckley and friends have a gift for logistics which trims down instead of nipping at the bud. Thus, to the argument that the work of the Committee bears some resemblance to Salem and the witches burned therein, the Conservative argues that the witches in Massachusetts were hanged and not burned. It is in keeping with the tenor of this book that Alger Hiss is given a fully documented, longish chapter, while Dr. Edward Condon is dismissed with a paragraph or two."

"The authors strike a pose of critical detachment as they undertake to review the record and performance of their subject. . . . The verdict has already been reached, however, which explains the authors' persistent practice of treating evidence as proof and assuming the truth of charges that they are pretending to test. It becomes clear that the Buckley method seeks to justify more than . . . the House Un-American Activities Committee. Its real purpose is to establish a political philosophy for our time which accepts authoritarianism as the only means of surviving 'in a world in which things like Communists and atom bombs exist.' . . . All of the authors take a pass at the Committee's critics, but William F. Rickenbacker performs noblest service to the cause. . . . To all but a tiny band of the opposition (the 'Purist Minority') he ascribes . . . distortion and falsehood having their origin in the Communist party. This finding has no more plausible foundation than earlier conclusions, but all are essential to the book's purpose. "Buckley and his fellow editors of National Review—such writers as James Burnham, Ralph de Toledano, M. The verdict on the Committee is favorable. . . . But all is not praise. . . . Professor Kendall's essay on 'Subversion in the Twentieth Century' goes to the heart of a problem about which there is widespread ignorance and apathy. The last named often uses, unfortunately, some strange premises, so Mr. Buckley ends up in as many blind alleys as his foe. Up from Liberalism, as the title indicates, is another salvo in the battle and displays Mr. Buckley at his best and worst. . . Mr. Buckley's conservative economic stands place him in clear contradiction to Catholic moral teaching on social doctrine. He is as wrong here as he is right in condemning the facade of academic freedom. . . Mr. Buckley is a provocative, stimulating writer. But perhaps the best summary of him came from the enemy camp. Despite the rage with which liberals received his first book, 'God and Man at Yale' [Book Review Digest 1951], . . . The final novel of a trilogy including April Snow and Land of Strangers [Book Review Digest 1951, 1953]. "Here Sigrid Christianson, born in this country of immigrant [Swedish] parents and orphaned at seventeen, makes her own way to independence and education among helping neighbors whose German, Dutch and Irish traditions intermingle with her own. The time includes the outbreak of World War I, dismaying the older folk from war-ridden lands, and the catastrophe of the capsizing of the excursion steamer Eastland at her dock, which left Sigrid responsible for a small child she was holding when his parents perished. In addition to the Chicago setting, Sigrid's journey to her grandmother's home in Sweden shows the background of principles, work, family solidarity and beauty that was her old-country heritage." " 'April Harvest,' as a story-picture, is painted in the colors of the Swedish flag—summer sky blue and the sun gold of happiness. Everything in the book carries the mood. There is no villain, no evil, and almost never a cruel or mean thought. The tale will bring neither tears nor blushes to anyone, even to a teen-ager, who like her elders, could be interested in how 17 year old Sigrid managed alone in 'wicked' Chicago. Mrs. Budd, it seems to me, has used prose that is a little too flowery sometimes, especially in her descriptions of nature or of emotions. "As with the Matterhorn, [this work] makes demands on anyone who hopes to get to the top. Minimum requirements are political intelligence and an ear for a style that is almost Henry Jamesian in its subtlety. . . . [Miss Buckmaster's] latest book shows a new firmness, a welcome contemporaneity, an almost startling relevance to the issues of the moment. There is extraordinarily beautiful writing in it; witty, perceptive comment on life and art; intimate knowledge of diverse national characters, speeches, and cultures. There is a microscopic eye for psychological detail and a telescopic grasp of historical necessity. In short, it is a work—indeed an act—of sheer intellectual and spiritual audacity." Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 6 '68 700w

"The characters other than Morogoda are scarcely more than shadowy figures, seen in endless talk and body movement—puffing of lips, stroking of hair, and so on. In spite of some tedium and defects of style, [the] book is an important, ambitious novel and is recommended for academic and public libraries." R. R. Gambee
Library J 93:2018 My 15 '68 190w

"As a novel, [the] book lacks the imaginative power required by these terrifying times. But it is not exactly a novel and is far from being a failure. Essentially, [it] is a political tract in fictional form, arguing the case for subordination of national interests to an international authority. . . . Questions of political realism here override questions of fictional realism, and this is fortunate because the political views of the characters are more convincing than their personalities. After encountering a couple of 'by joyes' and 'jolly goods' in the first appearance of the British Ambassador, I feared the worst. But the worst did not occur. Though these figures lack human richness, they have what this novel most requires: ideological vitality." Robert Scholes

BUDD, RICHARD W. Content analysis of communications [by] Richard W. Budd, Robert K. Thorp [and] Lewis Donohew. 147p $5.95 Macmillan (N Y)
001.5 Content analysis (Communication) 67-16048

"A study of messages and the conditions under which they are produced, processed, and distributed. The authors [consider] . . . what kinds of people are communicating and what ways the environment of the communicator may have significantly affected the communication. . . . Introductory chapters show how content analysis can be employed in conjunction with other behavioral research techniques and examine communications in relation to their environment. Subsequent chapters discuss various aspects of the method—hypothesis formulation and systematic study; sampling; meaurement; categories; direction; and problems of reliability and validity. The last two chapters center on . . . advanced statistical methods and the use of the computer." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"Budd, Thorp and Donohew have written that rare tool for analysts, a cookbook with valuable recipes for content analysis. . . . They begin with hypothesis formulation where they reveal their preoccupation with mass media and journalism (they are all in schools of journalism or communications). . . . An especially good section deals with reliability and validity, problems which plague any communications research. . . . It is only in the last chapter of the book, a brief five pages that the authors consider content analysis by computer. . . . [However,] the book is a valuable tool which is much needed for current work . . . [and] should provide a stimulus for research work and further, theoretical offerings." E. B. Pirro
Am Pol Sci R 62:607 Je '68 390w

"A useful feature [of this book] is the frequent reference to existing studies that illustrate techniques. In a survey like this some intensity of treatment must be sacrificed for breadth of coverage. Statistical concepts employed are on a simplified level. A good, concise introduction to content analysis as a research technique, oriented toward journalistic research, although useful in other disciplines."

SPECIAL INQUIRY - WHITE HOUSE

The White House has today requested an investigation of Buckley who, on 5/28/69, was named by the President as a member of the U. S. Advisory Commission on Information.

Buckley, aged 43, is Editor of "National Review" and writes a nationally syndicated column "On the Right." He is also host of a weekly television show "Firing Line." He was an associate editor of "American Mercury" prior to founding "National Review" in 1955.

A quick check of main files only indicates that we had limited but cordial relations with Buckley in the past and he was on the Special Correspondents List until 5/25/67 when he was removed therefrom after writing a mock editorial of the New York Times which appeared in "National Review" wherein Buckley attempted to be humorous at the expense of the Director.

ACTION: 1. The case has been ordered separately to the field for immediate attention and Bureau files are being checked. The field has been instructed to conduct no neighborhood investigation regarding Buckley without prior Bureau approval.

2. Due to Mr. Buckley's position, if approved, a representative of Mr. Bishop's office will contact Mr. Buckley and advise him that we have been requested to conduct this investigation of him.

Miscellaneous

Information Concerning Mr. Buckley

The records of the County Court of New York County, New York, New York, disclose Mr. Buckley was one of the defendants in two separate civil suits charging the "National Review" had published libelous editorials. An official judgment was rendered on January 5, 1966, with the plaintiff in one suit being awarded $336.38 and the plaintiff in the second suit being awarded $141.90. Both suits are listed as being closed.

The records of the United States District Court, Southern District of New York, New York, New York, disclose Mr. Buckley on May 6, 1969, filed a civil suit against Gore Vidal for defamatory allegations, requesting damages in the amount of $500,000. This matter is pending.

William Frank Buckley, Jr.

The May 16, 1969, issue of "Time" magazine contains the following statement:

> "It has to be the most bizarre writer-v.-writer confrontation since Westbrook Pegler took on Drew Pearson. Charging that Gore Vidal waged 'a campaign of persistent, false and defamatory allegations, both oral and written, that he is a Nazi,' Conservative Columnist William Buckley filed suit asking for $500,000 in damages. The charges stemmed from a fang-and-claw exchange that took place on ABC-TV during the Democratic Convention last August. At one point in the debate, Vidal called Buckley a 'crypto-Nazi,' to which Buckley replied: 'Listen, you queer, stop calling me a crypto-Nazi or I'll sock you in your goddam face and you'll stay plastered.' That sounded faintly libelous itself. Asked if he planned to file a countersuit, Vidal said, 'It's possible.'"

Information Concerning Father, William Frank Buckley, Sr.

The December 1, 1921, edition of the Mexico City, Mexico, daily publication "Excelsior" published the following statement reportedly made by Mr. Buckley's father, William Frank Buckley, Sr., which was made to a representative of the "Excelsior," at San Antonio, Texas:

> "After residing in Mexico during thirteen years and during which time I acquired property valued at several million dollars, I was ordered to leave the country on Wednesday, November 23rd, and on Sunday evening, November 27th, was granted a safe conduct to Laredo, Texas. My expulsion from Mexico was due to my determined opposition to President Obregon's Government. I have sent several memorials regarding the conditions prevailing in Mexico to the State Department in Washington, and the Mexican Administration ordered me to leave the country. While I was in the American Embassy in Mexico City last Thursday, early in the morning, I received a message from Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican Minister of Finance, asking me if I would discontinue my efforts as President of the American Association of Mexico, and dissolve the organization, in which event I would be permitted to remain in the country. This I refused to do. I did not answer de la Huerta's communication. I am against the recognition of Mexico by the U.S. Government because as soon as America recognizes the regime of President Obregon, it will proceed to take over the American property, just as Obregon did with the Spanish owned property, when that administration was recognized by Spain. Although the official press in Mexico for a long time has termed me as an interventionist, I do not favor such a move. I thought I had proved this to the Carranza Administration in 1914, when I declined to become the American Governor of Vera Cruz."

William Frank Buckley, Jr.

Buckley to Get Post on USIA Panel

By Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson

William Buckley, who has been a thorn in the side of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller for a good many years, is about to be appointed by President Nixon to a high honorary post. Buckley will be made a member of the United States Information Agency's Advisory Commission.

The Commission is one of the most prestigious in Washington, and has a direct bearing on American image abroad.

Its members include, as chairman, Dr. Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting Co.; Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Denver Post; Thomas Van H. Vail, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer; Morris Novik, radio and television advisor to the AFL-CIO and founder of the University of the Air; and Sigurd Larmon. Sigurd Larmon, whom Buckley will replace, is a distinguished Republican who has served on the Advisory Commission for 15 years.

Buckley, who ran as a Conservative for Mayor of New York against the present Republican Mayor, John Lindsay, has been the chief organizer of the Conservative Party in New York State, and has managed to take a sizeable share of the Republican vote away from Gov. Rockefeller's organization.

Buckley is currently the editor of the conservative National Review, and the author of various books, including "The Unmaking of a Mayor 1966," "The Intellectuals," "Rumbles Left and Right," "What Is Conservatism?" and a second edition of "The Unmaking of a Mayor 1966."

Nazi Stooges

Many Congressmen have protested a recent column listing the amounts they received from United Congressional Appeal, a Nazi front. Congressmen claim they had no way of knowing that any nazi-ism was involved in the money they received. However, here are the facts:

United Congressional Appeal was organized by Willis Carto, the mastermind behind the Nazi movement in America, who has declared that his goal is to "capture" political power.

Through United Congressional Appeal he handed out $90,000 last year to the conservative Congressional candidates and governors whom we listed.

We have pointed out that the candidates who accepted this money were by no means Nazis, but were careless in not checking into who was behind their contributors.

If they had looked at the signature on the checks they would have seen Carto's name. As early as October, 1966, we published correspondence from Carto praising Adolf Hitler.

"Hitler's defeat was the defeat of Europe and of America," Carto wrote in one letter. "How could we have been so blind? The blame, it seems, must be laid at the door of the international Jews.

"If Satan himself, with all his superhuman genius and diabolical ingenuity, had tried to create a permanent disintegration and force for the destruction of the nations, he could have done no better than to invent the Jews."

On two occasions, the Liberty Lobby, which Carto founded, sued this column, once for libel and once for publishing the above letter together with other correspondence. The libel suit involved Curtis Dall, president of the Liberty Lobby. The suit for invasion of privacy was based upon the grounds that we had no right to publish Carto's or Liberty Lobby's correspondence.

We won both suits, including appeals to the U.S. Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court refused to reverse the lower courts.

Wise Conservatives

It also had been widely published that Carto controlled the Liberty Lobby. Any candidate could have learned by a simple phone call that United Congressional Appeal was operating out of Liberty Lobby's headquarters.

The danger in the contributions to Congressmen lies in the fact that Carto has always sought to hide behind legitimate conservatives. He tried to recruit such a board of conservatives for United Congressional Appeal. Several conservatives, however, were wise and refused to have anything to do with his fund-raising drive.

Among those who refused to let him use their names were Ohio Rep. John Ashbrook, William Buckley, Goldwater's political manager Denison Kutchel, broadcaster Fulton Lewis III, Young Americans for Freedom leader J. Alan Mackay, Adm. Ben Moreell (Ret.) of Jones-Laughlin Steel and Human Events editor Tom Winter.

Those who permitted Carto to use their names included former Rep. Bruce Alger, who led the spitting and shoving crowd against Lyndon and Lady Bird Johnson in Dallas in 1960; Richard Cotten, a right-wing fanatic die-hard; Curtis Dall; and Tom Anderson, a member of the John Birch Society's national board. All have been associated with Liberty Lobby.

This information was available to the candidates who cashed the Carto-signed checks from United Congressional Appeal. Yet a few recipients still defiantly declare that they would accept contributions from this Nazi front again.

"I welcome contributions from such distinguished Americans," said Rep. Jim Haley, a hard-nose Florida Democrat and former manager of Ringling Brothers circus. "I hope the next time I run they send me another $1000."

"I find them to be conservative Americans who have long been devoted to freedom and the preservation of our Constitution," said Sen. Ed. Gurney, a Florida Republican who got a $2500 check signed by Carto.

Budge Given New Term as Head of SEC

President Nixon has reappointed Hamer H. Budge as a member and as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

He also named yesterday James J. Needham, a New York accountant, to fill a vacancy on the commission created by the resignation of Manuel F. Cohen, former chairman.

Budge, 58, a former congressman from Idaho, has been a member of the SEC since 1964. He was made chairman last February when Cohen resigned. His new term is for five years ending on June 5, 1974.

Martin G. Castillo, a Los Angeles lawyer who is a director of the Council of Mexican Affairs that administer Head Start in East Los Angeles and of the city's neighborhood legal services, was appointed by the President as a member and chairman of the Inter-Agency Committee on Mexican-American Affairs. He will replace Vicente T. Ximenes who has resigned.

At the same time, the President announced that he intends to nominate William F. Buckley Jr., a conservative Republican active on the New York City political scene, as a member of U.S. Advisory Commission on Information.

Buckley, 43, is editor of National Review and writes a newspaper column which is published in The Star and more than 200 other papers.

When he took over as conductor in chief of the Houston Symphony in 1967, Composer-Pianist Andre Previ joyfully exclaimed: "At last I am doi exactly what I want to do!" Now he can look for something else that he wants to do. Orchestra President Maurice Hirsch abruptly announced last week that Previn's contract will not be renewed. Hirsch indicated that the orchestra's sponsors were disgruntled over Previn's outside commitments, notably his romance with the London Symphony Orchestra. Another problem seems to have been Previn's mod, madcap ways. His romps in blue jeans through the city's nightspots with Mia Farrow have been amply recorded by local gossip columnists. For his part, Previn is outraged. "The town is musically wide-open for new things," he said, "but the orchestra is run by the most conservative group of people I've ever seen, even in cartoons."

A small but rabid band of Welsh nationalists has been sounding off angrily ever since the announcement that Britain's Prince Charles would be formally named Prince of Wales this July 1. But the protests all seemed more bark than bite. Now nine Welshmen are on trial for organizing a paramilitary outfit called the Free Wales Army, and last week the court was told of a document found in the home of one defendant detailing plans to murder young Charles "if necessary" to prevent his investiture at Caernarvon Castle. Unmoved, Charles maintained his royal composure and went about his studies of Welsh language and history at the University College of Wales.

At 74, he is four years past the usual mandatory retirement age for federal employees. But last week, as he celebrated his 45th anniversary in the same job, FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover allowed that he has "many plans and aspirations for the future. None of them," said Hoover pointedly, "include retirement. As long as God grants me the health and stamina to continue, I have no ambition other than to remain in my post as director of the FBI."

It has to be the most bizarre writer-v.-writer confrontation since Westbrook Pegler took on Drew Pearson. Charging that Gore Vidal waged "a campaign of persistent, false and defamatory allegations, both oral and written, that he is a Nazi," Conservative Columnist William Buckley filed suit asking for $500,000 in damages. The charges stemmed from a fang-and-claw exchange that took place on ABC-TV during the Democratic Convention last August. At one point in the debate, Vidal called Buckley a "crypto-Nazi," to which Buckley replied: "Listen, you queer, stop calling me a crypto-Nazi or I'll sock you in your goddam face and you'll stay plastered." That sounded faintly libelous itself. Asked if he planned to file a countersuit, Vidal said, "It's possible."

The immense tarpaulin dropped and 100 doves soared into the sky as Jacques Lipchitz's latest sculpture, Peace on Earth, was unveiled at the Music Center in Los Angeles. Donated by Philanthropists Lawrence Deutsch and Lloyd Rigler, and valued at $250,000, the 29-ft.-high, 10-ton design gives eloquent testimony to the career of the 77-year-old sculptor. Lipchitz spent three years on the project, laboring in his studio in central Italy. His efforts were interrupted by the Florentine floods of inal plaster. Undaunted, Lipchitz began anew. He was on hand to see his work unveiled. "Peace on Earth is my prayer for peace," he said. "If it will help us [illegible] peace, then it is good sculpture; [illegible]es not, it is bad sculpture."

"I'll take any flight that comes along," said the crew-cut Navy captain. "The sooner I get off the ground the better." Alan Shepard Jr.'s eagerness was understandable. Exactly eight years ago last week, he had blasted off aboard the Freedom 7 Mercury capsule to become the nation's first man in space. But an inner-ear ailment grounded him late in 1964 and he has been holding down a NASA desk job ever since. Now after surgery, Shepard, 45, has been pronounced fit for space travel once again, possibly aboard a moon-bound Apollo sometime next year.

Student dissent has infected even the second-graders at Beauvoir School of the National Cathedral in Washington —or so says Senator Ted Kennedy. The morning after a stormy homework session with seven-year-old Ted Jr., he found the following note outside his bedroom door. "You are not ascing me qestungs abouat the 5 pages. You are not creting my home work, it is a free wrold." Said Ted Sr.: "I called for the campus police."

As escort for her first official White House party, a masked ball, Tricia Nixon chose the capital's newest Congressman and most eligible bachelor, Barry Goldwater Jr. Blessed with his father's strong-jawed good looks, young Barry is nothing if not a romantic figure, and he and Tricia made a handsome couple as they danced to the beat of the Turtles and the Temptations. Republican matchmakers immediately started buzzing about yet another White House wedding. But their concern seems a bit premature; after all, it was only Tricia and Barry's first date.

There are some who might be impressed by Tittenhurst Park, a 72-acre estate 26 miles west of London, complete with a rambling Georgian mansion, Tudor tea pavilion, tennis court, heated swimming pool, gate lodge and four staff cottages. There are also those who are unaffected by such trappings. Among them are Tittenhurst's new owners: Beatle John Lennon and his Japanese bride, Yoko Ono. "A mansion?" scoffs John. "A nice functional house with just a couple of rooms for Yoko and me." What about that splendid private picture gallery? "Just a shed where everyone plays pingpong." The $348,000 price tag? Another bagatelle. "I say sometimes that we spend too much money, but it's a joke. I've got millions." Would the grounds be opened to the public? "Like hell. That may be a tradition here, but everyone knows I'm not traditional."

U. S. Department of State (USDS)

On 9/10/73 [redacted] Clerk, Personnel File Room, Personnel Services Division, USDS, and [redacted] Clerk, Personnel Locator, Personnel Services Division, USDS, advised SA [redacted] that they could locate no record which indicated that WILLIAM FRANK BUCKLEY, JR. has ever been employed by the USDS.

On 9/13/73 [redacted] Chief, Presidential Appointments Staff, Office of the Deputy Director of Personnel for Career Counseling and Assignments, USDS, advised SA [redacted] that BUCKLEY is presently under consideration for an appointment requiring Senate confirmation but he has not yet entered on duty and no official personnel file is maintained for him by the USDS.

United States Information Agency (USIA)

On 8/13/73 [redacted] Personnel Clerk, Personnel File Room, Office of Personnel and Training, USIA, advised SA [redacted] that the official personnel file covering the appointment of WILLIAM FRANK BUCKLEY, JR. from 1/28/69 to 1/27/72 as a Member of the U. S. Advisory Commission on Information had been sent to the Federal Records Center, St. Louis, Missouri.

A Security file for BUCKLEY at USIA, reviewed on 8/13/73 by SA [redacted] reflected that he was granted a "Top Secret" security clearance on 7/3/69 by USIA, based on a 1969 FBI investigation. This clearance terminated on 1/27/72 when BUCKLEY's appointment expired. The file listed the appointee's birthdate as 11/24/25 at New York City.

On 8/13/73 [redacted] U. S. Advisory Commission on Information, USIA, advised SA [redacted] that he had known WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR. primarily professionally during the three-year period of his appointment as a Member of the Advisory Commission. He indicated that BUCKLEY was a diligent and active member of the Commission and attended about 90% of the monthly one-day meetings. In addition, BUCKLEY made several trips overseas where he made speeches, observed USIA operations, and met with prominent officials of the host countries.

[redacted] described BUCKLEY as a funny, humorous, generous, thoughtful, and delightful person. He indicated that he, [redacted] did not agree with some of BUCKLEY's views on political, social or philosophical matters and they kidded each other a good deal. [redacted] emphasized that he and the appointee did agree on many things and they respected each other's views. He reported that he considers BUCKLEY to be a loyal, dedicated, and patriotic U. S. citizen and a man of excellent character, habits, morals, reputation, and associations. [redacted] recommended the appointee for a clearance for government employment, commenting that he is an extremely intelligent and witty individual with many interests who "works like a dog" and seems to have no end to his energy and industry. He remarked that "very few people take a moderate view regarding BUCKLEY, you either agree with his views or you do not". However, even his critics admire BUCKLEY's wit and brilliance. He is straightforward and firm in stating his views and is a very creative and imaginative individual. [redacted] mentioned that BUCKLEY was not reappointed to another term on the Advisory Commission in 1972 because of his disagreement with the President's policy of detente with the Soviet Union and Red China. BUCKLEY asked that he not be reappointed to the Advisory Commission in 1972.

On 8/13/73 [redacted] U. S. Advisory Commission on Information, USIA, advised SA [redacted] that she had known BUCKLEY in an official capacity on an intermittent basis from [redacted] while he served as a Member of the Advisory Commission. [redacted] stated that she has the greatest respect for the appointee both personally and professionally and has no reason whatever to question his character, reputation, loyalty, or associations. She recommended BUCKLEY for a position of trust and confidence with the U. S. Government, adding that he was an active and productive member of the Commission.

LEO BRENT BOZELL
DESTRUCTION OF AIRCRAFT OR
MOTOR VEHICLES - FALSE REPORT

b6
b7C

At approximately 11:00 a.m. Saturday, August 4, 1973, Leo Brent Bozell, a white male, date of birth January 19, 1926, approached the north security check point, Eppley Airfield, Omaha, Nebraska, and in anticipation of boarding Frontier Airlines flight number 534, departing Omaha for Kansas City, Missouri. Mr. Bozell was carrying one piece of carry-on luggage which he presented for inspection to [redacted] Wells Fargo Security Services - Airline Agent. While presenting the suitcase, Mr. Bozell made the statement, "I've got four compartments with explosives here, one, two, three, four, and they are all full of explosives."

Mr. Bozell was immediately detained by Security Officer [redacted] who overheard the comment, while security supervisors were notified. A detailed search of Bozell's bag by security personnel failed to reveal any explosives and Mr. Bozell stated that the remark was made in jest.

Assistant United States Attorney (AUSA) Thomas D. Thalken, District of Nebraska, Omaha, Nebraska, was contacted and advised of the pertinent facts in this case. AUSA Thalken advised that, in his opinion, this matter does not warrant prosecution under the criminal provisions of the Statute, Title 18, United States Code, Section 35(b).

BY COURIER SERVICE

The Honorable
The Acting Secretary of State
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Secretary:

Reference is made to previous communications which furnished the Department of State the results of investigation concerning Mr. William Frank Buckley, Jr.

Transmitted herewith is a copy of a memorandum dated August 6, 1973, at Omaha, Nebraska, disclosing Mr. Buckley's brother-in-law, Leo Brent Bozell, on August 4, 1973, while undergoing security inspection at an airport in Omaha, Nebraska, falsely indicated there were explosives in his carry-on luggage.

Information has also been received from the Metropolitan Police Department, Washington, D. C., disclosing Mr. Bozell was arrested on June 6, 1970, on charges of assaulting a police officer, unlawful entry, and destruction of property. These charges stemmed from activities on the part of Mr. Bozell during a rally held on June 6, 1970, by members of St. Stephen-Martyr Church who were protesting abortions at 2150 Pennsylvania Avenue, Northwest, Washington, D. C., which address is a clinic utilized by George Washington University Hospital. The records disclose the participants were denied entrance to the building but forced their way inside, breaking a glass inner door. During the ensuing struggle, Mr. Bozell struck a police officer with a large wooden cross which he, Mr. Bozell, had been carrying. The records disclose he received a six months' suspended sentence on each charge and was placed on probation for three years, his probation expiring on September 27, 1973.

The foregoing information is also being furnished to The White House and no further action is contemplated in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

161-6442-8
